Product Description

The B-4 Table Lamp by Greta M. Grossman was designed in 1945 and bears her whimsical and powerful signature style. With playful angles and geometric elements, the table lamp is characterized by its colorful and movable visors allowing light to diffuse softly around any table it stands on. The lamp fits effortlessly into almost any environment, adding a dash of American modernism panache to the room. The silhouette of the B-4 Table Lamp, with its stilt base and alternating color panels, resembles some of Greta M. Grossman's most iconic architecture more than any other design item from her career. Typically, her houses were perched high up on stilts with cantilevered decks and walls of glass to take in the magnificent hillside views of Southern California – and with a fanciful style, the B-4 Table Lamp beautifully reflects her modernist design principles. Visors are movable. Available in 4 colorways.
